At half-past 11 or 12 yesterday a special committee appointer at the meeting Monday night of the George E. Pickett Confederate Veterans, went out to Westhampton Park to get things ready for the other members of the camp and their friends. Between I and 2 many of the crowd came; by 3 o'clock fully two hundred people were on the grounds.

Plenty of diversion was furnished in the shape of a bowling alley, shooting gallery, merry-go-round and row boats. The latter were in great demand; all the afternoon they dotted the shimmering surface of the placid little lake, which is situated to the rear of the commodious dancing partition. Interspersed throughout the woods fringing the western shores of the lake were refreshment tables, and hammocks were suspended in favored spots. The natural attractiveness of the park was greatly enhanced by the presence of quite a number of young ladies, most of whom were attired in white. In addition to other delicades, lemonade and beer were served. The beverage last was mitigated by clouds. More than one member of the camp said that the thorough success of this annual reunion was due in large degree to the efforts of Mr. Christian Zimmer, veteran comrade. Among others present at the park were Mr. David C. Richardson, Gervas J. torrs, Captain Scott, Captain George Dean, Captain A. M. Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Booton Hill.

Broke His Neck.

Anderson Johnson, a negro, died early yesterday moofning as the result of a fall he had while fightling with a negro named Fernett Mitchell. The two negroes were fightling, and Mitchell is alleged to have struck Johnson and knocked him down. He fell with his head against a brick and his neck was dislocated. The coroner's inquest will be held to-day, and the trial of Mitchell has been postponed until the 11th.

A merry-go-round gave enjoyment to the younger element of the crowd.

The weather was delightful. Toward the latter part of the afternoon the heat of Them-Few Causalties Reported.

JULY 12th.

Very Quietly Observed in This City.

Independence Day was very generally observed in Richmond yesterday by abstinence from labor for the whole day or for at least a part of it by an overwhelming majority of the population. Many of the retail business houses kept their places open and made a pretense of doing business, but the game was not worth the candle, save for the accommodation of a few patrons. The job bing houses, manufactories and large industrial plants, offices and banking institutions, municipal, State and Federal buildings were all closed either for half the day or for the whole day.

Amusements at Reservoir Park, two rattling base-ball games at Broad Street Park in the afternoon, an all-day trap shooting tournament at the traps of the Richmond Gun Club, many private excursion parties by rail or river, sporadic discharges of poperackers, marked the day in this city. Thousands of Richmonders went to the seashore on the three morning trains over the Chesapeake and Ohio or over the Norfolk and Western special to Virginia Beach, and several hundred, at low estimate, went in pairs, or in parties to nearby rural resorts or visited other cities. The reduced rates offered by all railways induced many country people to visit Richmond and strangers were in evidence everywhere.

Remarkably few casualties are; reported from the day's indulgence or from careless handling of fireworks. In fact, up to 9 P. M. the police and the hospitals had heard of no fireworks injuries, and few of any kind, the ambulance surgeons attending several negroes cut or injured in drunken fights or brawls. The firemen, too, had an unusual immunity from alarms.

Was a Typical Day.

The weather was typical of the day and the season, and was more favorable to the enjoyment of celebrants than the weather bureau had forecast. In the afternoon a storm seemed imminent, but it passed and no rain fell during the entire day. The cloudiness in the afternoon and the breeze that portended a storm brought some relief from the high temperature, without the promised thunderstorms.

The base-ball games at Broad Street contests and went home at 6 o'clock well

At the Reservoir Park thousands At the Reservoir Park thousands thronged the beautiful grounds and patronized the various amusements there. A large number of the park visitors were out of town people. All the amusement features did a lively business all day. The order maintained was excellent, the only disorder reported being a row between a colored waiter at the Rathskellar and two white patrons, in the course of which the negro was struck with a beer bottle.

Most of the noise was on Broad Street. Most of the noise was on Broad Street, where there was considerable firing of pop-crackers all day. In the evening an ocasicional rocket was fired and Roman candles illumined the darkness. The law forbidding dynamite crackers was fairly well observed, most of the firing being of the small and harmless variety. The police report excellent order for a holiday, most of the arrests being for drunkenness and a few for fighting.

Many on Street Care

Many on Street Cars.

Many on Street Cars.

The street railway lines did a heavy day's business, all the cars in every direction being pretty well filled all day. No street car accidents of any kind were reported, the crowds being handled with safety and dispatch.

Among the private parties who enjoyed out of town picnics was one of a dozen or more people, who for years have gone to Ashland Park for the Fourth. These embraced Messrs, Wirt E. Taylor, R. A. Taylor, Warren P. Taylor, C. W. Culp, Henry M. Boykin, A. von N. Rosenegk, Major Courtney, E. A. Baughman, James F. Howison, Horace G. Buchanan, Alfred B. Williams, E. L. C. Scott, Stonewall J. Doswell, C. E. Potts, Palmer Evans, J. E. Cox and T. F. Cheney. The party spent a pleasant and restful day at the park, just above the town, returning in the evening. The trip was made on a special train.

The postoffice employes worked balf a day, the carriers made one delivery and the usual collections were made. The revenue offices and the Federal courts were idle and closed. So was the customs department.

The State Library building and its various offices were descried all day, save by visitors, who went in to inspect the buildings and portraits. The Capitol offices were closed, and everywhere there was a Sunday appearance of utter abstinence from work.

many of the stores had window decorations appropriate to the day. Everywhere there was a holiday appearance, with business at a practical standstill. The hotels had fewer arrivals than usual, and the lobbies were almost deserted.

In the harbor vessels and steamers were flying flags and gay bunting.

Many persons spent the day at the country clubs, or on the river in boating and fishing, but by far the greater number of outing parties were to the seasoner or to West Point. Extra trains hauled the crowds down in the morning and brought them back in safety in the evening.

All the city and State offices were closed on account of the glorious Fourth. They will open up this morning at the usual hours for business.

The officers and cicks for the most part went out of town for the day.

Presentation Address.

J. H. Brown, designer of the monument, made a short address in delivering the monument into the hands of the committee. The presentation speech was made by John Wilson, chairman of the Monument Committee. Maria Glover, great-granddaughter of John Jasper, drew the vell, and the monument was disclosed to the eyes of the cheering multitude. The speech of acceptance was made by Rev. Z. D. Lewis, pastor of the Second Baptist Church. Music was rendered by the choir, and then in behalf of the church a response was made by Rev. R. V. Peyton. These were followed by other addresses by Rev. E. Payne, pastor of Fourth Baptist Church: Rev. W. F. Graham, and an original poem, "Rev. John Jasper," by G. W. Pinkney.

The secretary of the Foreign Missionary Society made a few appropriate remarks, and the ceremonies were closed with a benediction.

A Handsome Shaft.

The monument is in the form of a shaft, twenty feet-high and erected on a solid concrete base, fourteen feet square. On one face of the column is the legend, his last, words: "I have finished my work; I am waiting at the river, looking across for further orders." On another face is, the inscription, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again," St. John iii: 7. This was the last text from which Jasper preached.

The shaft is not only a fitting tribute to the famous negro, but also a monument to the patience, perseverence and loyalty of those whose minds and hearts prompted the movement.

Charles Miller was arraigned lefore a jury in the Circuit Court yesierday and conducted his defense with all the shrewdness of a lawyer. He put the witnesses through a severe cross-examination, and several times called the court's attention to improper questions asked by the Commonwealth's Attorney. One witness swore that he noticed a white substance on Miller's shees the next day after the attempted jail delivery. The defendant asked the witness if he would know the substance if he were to see it again, and received a reply in the affirmative. Behind the bar Miller rubbed a lot of lime across his shoe and fasked the witness if this was what he saw. The witness said it was Miller was discharged.

This medicine contains the following non-alcoholic vegetable extracts:

Lady Sipper (Oypripedium Pubescens). Black Ochosh (Olmolfuga Racemosa). Unicorn Root (Ohamaelirium Luteum). Blue Ochosh (Caulophyllum Thallotroides). Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis).

The Smith murder trial will certainly proceed this morning at 10 o'clock. This is an assured fact unless some unfore seen trouble again prevents the progress of the case. Mr. Charles L. Page, Commonwealth's Attorney, who has been so ill, and on whose acount Judge Clopton adjourned court, is again out, and although still suffering from the effects of his recent hospital experience and broken down by his arduous work in preparing for the trial, stated last night that he would be in his place this morning 10 o'clock. der the trees around the courthouse and talked of what they would have done on "the Fourth" if "State affairs" had not claimed their undivided attention. Two of the jurors had gotten up a picnie for the Sunday school of their church, and they were wondering how the affair came off. All were homsesick and weary of being "good men and true" in the legal sense of the words.

Just when spirits were at lowest ebb, good cheer arrived in the shape and form of a great freezer of lee cream. Judge Clopton, who regretted that he was compelled to keep the jurorg in town on the giorious Fourth, sent the lee cream, with his compliments, and it is fair to say that His Honor is the greatest man in the world in the opinion of the men of the Smith jury.

Sergeant Saunders and Deputy Millard Martin held the fort all day long and late last night, when The Times-Dispatch man visited the camp at the courthouse, all hands were in good spirits. It is said that the jurors have as yet scarcely talked together about the case, and that they have determined to hear all the evidence before entering into discussions.

Mrs. Turner, the last witness for the Commonwealth, who is seriously ill at her house next door to the Smith cottage, on Sixth Street, was better last night and is expected to appear on the witness stand this morning.

Mrs. Smith, the prisoner, spent a quiet

Fourth with her husband, who appears much more concerned about the outcome of the trial than his wife does.

Mr. and Mrs. Llonel Ashburner spent several hours talking with the prisoner, but neither Mrs. Townsend nor Dr. Townsend appeared at the jail during the day. It was stated that they had spent the day in Patersburg.
